

Legal Process Outsourcing

Coupled with a triple threat of budget caps, increase in law firm fees and headcount restrictions, law departments of companies also faced with growing workloads from compliance demands and corporate expansions. It's a tricky balance, to control outside spending by keeping the additional work inside without hiring more attorneys. Additionally in today's intensely aggressive legal environment, lawyers are under enormous pressure to reduce their fees while increasing their billable hours.

The Legal Services Offshoring Industry in India has stepped up to support corporations and make them more efficient and successful. Outsourcing of legal services is not a new concept. It is, however, just beginning its exponential growth. Fed in part by problems faced by corporation law departments and in part because of improving skills and capabilities in the market place, high growth in this market is a given. Full exploitation of these capabilities, however, has been delayed by several factors, including in-house counsel and law firm reluctance to explore this avenue. However, as processes, skills and methodologies improve, and as law departments and attorneys begin getting comfortable with outsourcing, this reluctance will ultimately decrease leading to the growth of legal services.

brainBox's Legal services offer a suite of solutions that have been specifically designed to address the challenges faced by law department and attorneys. We support law departments and attorneys execute their business and goals smoothly, through processes that are structured, real-time and, monitored solutions.
